

THE ENGLISH-PROFICIENCY-TESTING-EXEMPT COUNTRIES

Undergraduate Students: Students who went to an English-medium* high school for a complete four years in these countries may be exempt from the Andrews English Proficiency requirement.

Graduate Students: Students who got an undergraduate degree from an English-medium* college or university in these countries may be exempt from the Andrews English Proficiency requirement.

American Samoa Anguilla

Antigua and Barbuda Australia

Bahamas Barbados Belize

Belize
Bermuda
Botswana
British Guyana
British Virgin Islands
British West Indies

 \mathbf{C} ameroon

Canada (except Quebec)

Cayman Islands Dominica

Falkland Islands

Fiji Gambia

Ghana

Gibraltar Grenada Guam Guyana

India
Ireland
Jamaica

Kenya
Lesotho
Liberia
Malawi
Mauritius

Montserrat
Namibia
New Zealand

Nigeria Pakistan

Papua New Guinea

Philippines

Puerto Rico Rwanda

St. Kitts and Nevis

St. Lucia

St. Vincent and the Grenadines

St. Helena Seychelles Sierra Leone Singapore South Africa South Sudan Swaziland Tanzania

Trinidad and Tobago Turks and Caicos Islands

Uganda

United Kingdom

United States of America

US Virgin Islands

Zambia Zimbabwe

*In cases where there is more than one language of instruction, and English is one of the languages, the decision has been made to require an official English proficiency test for the Andrews University admission.

Sources Consulted:

Ethnologue: Languages of the World

The Andrews University Academic Credentials for Admission

The World Almanac and Book of Facts, 2001 Edition